

HELLO SUNSHINE!

Yippee, summer is finally putting in an appearance! Whilst I am hopeful that I will be baking hot in the kitchen, I have a cunning plan. I will be cooking up some quintessentially English summer flavours so you can at least close your eyes and enjoy the taste of summer should rain stop play.

What's Been Cooking...

- ♥ Royal Rocky road to celebrate Harry and Meghan's wedding.. this addition had ginger nuts instead of digestives, which certainly got the seal of approval and a few giggles!
- ♥ The Spring Fling Cupcake Range - light and luscious flavours went down well, especially the Lemon Curd
- ♥ Blood Orange Marmalade - despite making double last year's amount of Seville Orange Marmalade with the hope it would be enough to see us through the year, you lot have scoffed it! So when these seasonal beauties cropped up, I thought I would give a new marmalade a shot. Sweeter and more fragrant, this one will definitely be added to the jamming calendar!

What's Hot...

Chink of sunshine, flip flopped feet—I make it Pimms Cupcake O'clock. The perfect taste of summer, right down to the homemade cucumber extract and mint ice cube!

What's Coming Up...

Hot Date Chutney, Suffolk Beer Chutney (with a very special Suffolk Herb Mix) and Keralan Lime Pickle ... as my eldest pickle is off on expedition, she is under strict instructions to bring back some culinary Keralan tips.
